The intersection of Rte. 252 and West Chester Pike is not always a smooth process. Traffic has a tendency to back up especially at “rush hour”. (true oxymoron) So if you find yourself heading east and waiting for traffic to resume, take a look to your left and catch a glimpse of The Upper Crust. Don’t let the rather ordinary appearance of the gray building with the striped awnings deceive you into thinking that nothing extraordinary or special could be happening within those walls.

The Upper Crust is a pretty special place! To start with, the Khoury family that owns it is very special. In 1982 Abraham Khoury took the adventurous step to come to America from Lebanon. Without resources or the ability to speak English, Abraham attempted to make a new life for himself. It would not be easy. Just as he was on the brink of leaving America because he had no means of support, several strangers reached out to him and helped him open doors that he could not do on his own. One of these folks made it possible for him to study chemistry for three years at St. Joseph’s University. In order to keep himself solvent, he worked hard on weekends at a pizza shop. At the suggestion of others and with their help, he bought the Upper Crust in 1987. His goal was to be successful in business so that he would be able to reach out and help other struggling people as he had been helped.

A short time later his brother, Tony, and his parents arrived from Lebanon. They brought the same determination and willingness to work hard in order to make the business a success. In spite of long hours, they discovered real satisfaction in creating a restaurant in which people would be treated as family. A brief visit to one of the booths or tables will give you a good idea of what that means. Most customers are greeted by name and then further questioned about other persons or event in their lives.

In 1996 the Khourys expanded their business by annexing the space that had been used by the pharmacy next door. This provided much needed additional seating for patrons. When asked about the future of The Upper Crust, Abraham replied that he would die there “with a hoagie in my mouth”.

So if you are looking for a realistically priced tasty breakfast, lunch or dinner and want a large “side dish” of valued friendship and personal encouragement, stop in and give your stomach a delicious treat and your heart and spirit a lift for the day. See you at the Upper Crust.
